Spectrum Art Exhibition

“TRACES” is the title of a fresh and engaging new group exhibition of painting, drawing, print and installation that opens in Castlebar Library on Wednesday 15th April at 6.00pm. This is the second group show by Spectrum Art Group, and showcases the work of the eleven 2008 Art & Design Degree graduates of Galway Mayo Institute of Technology (GMIT), Castlebar Campus.

“TRACES” is an exhibition that explores notions of heritage “with a small ‘h’”, and offers a wide range of artistic responses to the theme. The exhibition is the work of Ann Burke, Orla Farrell, Betty Gannon, Síle Lally, Philip McKinney, Lorraine O’Donoghue, Vida Pain, Marie Padden, Frankie Ralph-O’Malley, Moira Stratford and Ian Wiczorek.

With a wide range of styles, approaches and techniques, there’s sure to be something to everyone’s taste. And with an eye to previous achievements, who knows what success the future holds for this talented group of emerging artists? Catch them now.

The exhibition will be officially opened by John Mulloy, Lecturer in Art History and Critical Theory at GMIT. So come along, meet the artists and enjoy some complimentary refreshments as you view the show. All are welcome. The exhibition runs until Wednesday 29th April, and is open during Library hours.

Mayo Musician Receives an Award

Mayo musician Roger Sherlock from Cloonfeightrin near Gurteen, on the Sligo Mayo border was presented with the TG4 2009 Lifetime Achievement award on Saturday night in the Wexford Opera House. The prestigious TG4 Gradam Ceoil 2009 (TG4 Traditional Music Awards) concert was broadcast on TG4 on Easter Sunday at 9.30pm. Award winners and their friends were joined in concert by many of Ireland’s best-known traditional musicians. The awards concert was co-hosted by TG4’s Dáithí Ó Sé and singer Muireann Nic Amhlaoibh and included the Sharon Shannon Band, At the Racket, Four Star Trio, Des Mulcaire, Éamonn Cotter, Geraldine Cotter, local Wexford musicians John & Pip Murphy along with Rick Epping, Mike McGoldrick, Dessie Donnelly and singer Len Graham.

Those joining in the event to present awards included Hollywood star Brendan Gleeson, traditional singer Roisín White, former Wexford hurling manager Liam Griffin, musician Liz Doherty and TG4 Ceannasaí Pól Ó Gallchóir. For the grand finale all the musicians along with Brendan Gleeson on the fiddle took to the stage for a set of tunes that brought the concert to a magnificent end.
